

WHAT IS THE PROGRAM ABOUT?

The Intensive Therapy Program is an innovative treatment approach for babies and children with cerebral palsy and other 'neuromuscular challenges'. It is designed to address the unique and desired goals of each child and the child's family. The program is based on NDTA Contemporary Practice Model™ and associated paediatric therapy. Therapy will be provided as two sessions per day each on three to four consecutive days by Dr Kate Bain, an experienced Paediatric Occupational Therapist certified in NDTA Contemporary Practice Model™ and a qualified Neuro-Developmental Treatment Association (USA) Advanced Instructor. The intensive program is designed to complement the child's ongoing regular therapy.

WHAT IS NEURO-DEVELOPMENTAL TREATMENT?

The NDTA Contemporary Practice Model™ is a 'hands-on' therapeutic approach that aims to assist children to increase their independence and participation, at home and in the community, by addressing task-related posture and movement skills and motor learning. Treatment is goal-directed and family-driven; the family and child choose the daily tasks they want to work on improving, and this becomes the focus of the therapy, through measurable functional goals that are assessed before and after treatment each day. Play and engaging activities help to make therapy enjoyable.

HOW DO CHILDREN AND FAMILIES BENEFIT?

The program aims to improve the child's independence with daily living skills such as eating, drinking, dressing, personal hygiene and toileting; play and leisure activities; kinder and school related tasks, such as writing, drawing and cutting; mobility and transition skills. Participating families can expect to see improvements toward the chosen goals, and learn how to better assist their child with new and developing skills. Parents may invite their child's regular therapist to observe the final treatment session or, alternatively, to attend all sessions - and received 'self-styled' CPD training between sessions (fee applies for training).
